EDUCATORS' PERFORMANCE PLAN

I PURPOSE OF PLAN

The West Shore School District is committed to maintaining a positive atmosphere for the supervision and evaluation of employee performance. The Educators' Performance Plan (EPP) contained herein recognizes that an evaluation plan must meet certain legal requirements while emphasizing professional employee growth to improve instruction and student learning. Specifically, this plan recognizes the varying levels of mastery and encourages alternative evaluation, as defined in this document. In this spirit, the West Shore School District Educators' Performance Plan is designed to accomplish the following purposes:

- A. To define current best practices in delivery of instruction, including but not limited to, Danielson's components of professional practice, personalized learning and data informed practices.
- B. To ensure the observation and evaluation processes clearly link effective instruction to the Pennsylvania Core Standards, PA Academic Standards, Industry Standards and National Standards.
- C. To inform professional employees of the West Shore School District's performance expectations as specified in the job descriptions contained in this document.
- D. To foster professional growth of the employee's performance.
- E. To provide benchmarks for professional employee self-evaluation and growth.

- Recognition of the priorities of current federal requirements;
- Utilization of best practices across all areas of learning;
- Achievement for all students that reflect yearly progress as prescribed by the legislation;
- Continuing professional growth through staff development opportunities.

Educators must also have a belief system that:

- Requires an ongoing commitment to create a student-centered environment conducive to learning
- Remains open-minded toward educational research
- Encourages professional communication, collaboration, and collegiality
- Embraces paradigm shifts
- Possesses a genuine warmth for all children with a personality that is understanding and receptive to the differences, needs, and concerns of others
- Practices the qualities of good judgment, patience, and tact
- Understands the importance of integrating technology throughout the curriculum

In order to maintain the high standards established by the West Shore School District, educators will be evaluated as prescribed by this Educators' Performance Plan. It is the intent of this plan to establish an atmosphere of shared responsibility and empowerment to promote professional growth.

Act 13 of 2020, signed into law by Governor Tom Wolf on March 27, 2020, revises the Act 82 Educator Effectiveness (EE) process used to evaluate professional employees and temporary professional employees in PK-12 education across the commonwealth. The revised rating system applies to classroom teachers and nonteaching professionals as defined in Act 13.

The revised frameworks remain consistent with the original paradigms but include newly incorporated references to commonwealth priorities as delineated in Pennsylvania's ESSA Consolidated State Plan:

- Practices that support equity in education (i.e., ensuring every child has an equal chance for success).
- Practices that support cultural competence in education (i.e., valuing the diversity among students and designing an educational system to serve all).
- Practices that encourage inclusion in education (i.e., providing students with special needs the same educational setting as non-disabled peers, where appropriate).
- Practices that foster social and emotional learning (i.e., the process by which students understand and manage emotions and their effect on relationships and decisions).
- Practices that further career readiness (i.e., attainment of broad competencies for a successful transition to the workplace).
- Practices that encompass research-based strategies (e.g., scaffolding or project-based learning).
- Practices that facilitate synchronous and asynchronous remote learning (i.e., when a student is not physically present in a traditional classroom).

Classroom teacher is defined as a professional employee or temporary professional employee who provide direct instruction to students related to a specific subject or grade level.

Nonteaching professional is defined as an educational specialist or a professional employee or temporary professional employee who provides services and who is not a classroom teacher.

PLANNING EXPECTATIONS

Planning and preparation for teaching and service delivery are both collaborative and personal. In order to successfully plan for optimal student growth and achievement it is necessary for collaboration among the members of a grade/subject/department level as well as between grade and subject levels. The information shared during those interactions then needs to be utilized by the professional to meet an individual's style as well as the learning styles of the students. The plans created by individual/groups of teachers/professionals should have common elements: WHAT the student will learn, HOW they will be engaged in that learning, and what type of ASSESSMENT will be used to determine the level of learning.

Goals should be selected based on the Pennsylvania and National Standards for the grade/subject/department level as well as the West Shore School District Curriculum. Teachers and non-teaching professionals are encouraged to develop a comprehensive knowledge of their standards and structure their lessons and service delivery to ensure these standards, and all facets of the curriculum, are addressed.

A final component of planning and preparation is tied to the knowledge of subject matter and effective teaching and service delivery strategies that a professional possesses. Research has shown that these, as well as knowledge of each student, are some of the mostly highly rated components of a successful learning environment.

DOMAIN 1 PLANNING AND PREPARATION

Application

There is much research regarding how children learn best and our student success anchors references many. It is important to utilize the anchors when planning and delivering instruction and/or services.

- Student-centered teaching and learning/service delivery
- Best instructional practices
- Adults know and care about each student
- Authentic experiences and assessments
- Personalized learning experiences
- Differentiated
- Data-informed
- Relevant and engaging

These practices used consistently and pervasively have been shown to improve student achievement for all students.

Expectations

Teaching and service delivery plans may utilize a variety of formats. Teaching plans must contain at a minimum:

- An essential question
- An activating strategy
- Teaching strategies
- Differentiation
- Summarization
- Assessment

Service Delivery Plans

These vary widely depending on the service. Typically a plan includes:

- Setting
- Format
- Dosage
- Provider

Goals are developed based on data, progress monitoring occurs along the way and then the plan is evaluated based on outcomes.

Teaching plans will include reference to Pennsylvania Core Standards where approved standards exist or to applicable PA Academic or National Standards. Plans should be made for teaching a concept and may cover more than one cycle day.

Plans must be available electronically or in hard copy for building administration. See “Lesson Plan” section on page 53 for more information.

DOMAIN 2

CLASSROOM ENVIRONMENT/EDUCATIONAL ENVIRONMENT

Philosophy

We want to provide a place where students want to be, therefore, it is essential to create an atmosphere of respect and rapport. The interactions, although non-instructional in nature, are necessary for effective instruction and delivery of service. Professional staff are expected to establish a comfortable and respectful classroom and school environment which cultivates a culture for learning and creates a safe place for risk-taking. Non-instructional routines and procedures are handled efficiently; student behavior is cooperative and non-disruptive, and the physical environment supports the stated instructional purposes.

Application

Professional staff must have high expectations for and a genuine commitment to all students. Students respond to this approach by feeling safe and knowing that they can count on their teachers and professional staff to be fair, and when necessary, compassionate.

Expectations

Respect and Rapport: Teaching and service delivery is a matter of developing relationships among individuals. These relationships should be grounded in the rapport and mutual respect developed both between the teacher/professional and student as well as among the students in the class or small group.

Culture for Learning: A strong culture for learning exists, everyone, including the teacher/professional, is engaged in pursuits of value. A culture for learning implies high expectations for all students as well as a safe environment for risk taking.

Classroom/Behavior Management (procedures and behavior): Teaching and service delivery require good management before good instruction is possible. This is obtained through the following:

- Efficient use of instructional time as a result of the development of procedures for the smooth operation of the classroom.
- Efficient and respectful management of student behavior developed through agreed-upon standards of conduct and clear consequences for non-observance of those standards.

Organization of Physical Space: This component encompasses concerns for safety and accessibility to learning, arrangement of furniture and the use of physical resources. All of these send signals to students about how professionals view learning.

DOMAIN 3 INSTRUCTION AND ASSESSMENT/DELIVERY OF SERVICE

Philosophy

The primary mission of schools is to enhance student growth and achievement. This implies that students must be actively engaged in learning with optimal time on task. The elements: communicating clearly and accurately, using questioning and discussion techniques, engaging students in learning, providing feedback to students and demonstrating flexibility and responsiveness, are unified through student construction of meaning and participation in a community of learners.

Application

Students learn best when they are actively engaged in their learning. This happens when they understand the Unit/Lesson Essential Question/goals of a session, how those essential questions/goals connect to concepts they already know, how the lesson is applicable in real life situations, and how they will be accountable for the knowledge or skill learned in the lesson. Knowledge is assimilated and retained for a longer period of time when students understand the relevance of the information to prior learning and how that information will benefit them in the long term. Knowing why the information is important is a key motivating factor.

By inviting students to engage in this exploration of learning with them, the teacher/professional creates motivation. The ways in which the teacher/professional activates prior knowledge, organizes and presents the content, expects students to assume active roles by talking about the content, and utilizes summarizing strategies as essential parts of the lesson, will motivate students to excel.

Expectations

Linking each step of the learning process to the one before and the one to come is essential to gaining active student involvement in the learning process.

- Communication: must always be clear and accurate, utilizing vivid and expressive language. This is accomplished through two elements: clarity of directions and procedures and the quality of oral and written communication.
- Questioning and Discussion techniques: Carefully phrased questions that result in students reflecting on their understanding and considering new possibilities. Of equal importance is sufficient wait time to construct a response. Discussions engage all students, with the teacher/professional as the facilitator for a variety of ideas. Follow-up for questions and discussion topics often extend the learning to a higher level.
- Engaging Students in Learning: Student engagement is intellectual involvement with the content or active construction of understanding.
- Providing Feedback to Students: This incorporates any type of information given to students about their progress in learning. It is essential that feedback be given to all students and that it be more than just a grade on a test or project. Feedback should be accurate, constructive, substantive, specific and timely. To maximize feedback, students need to use it in their learning.
- Demonstrating Flexibility and Responsiveness: Teachers/Professionals may demonstrate their flexibility and responsiveness in major and minor ways. There are three types of situations in which flexibility and responsiveness may be observed:
 - An instructional activity that is not working. This may result in abandoning the activity or altering it.
 - A spontaneous event that provides an opportunity for valuable learning.
 - A teacher's/professional's awareness of efficacy and commitment to the learning of all students. This usually involves an alternative approach for some students.

DOMAIN 4

PROFESSIONAL RESPONSIBILITIES

Philosophy

While the acts of teaching and service delivery, with all of their requisite components are vital, professional responsibilities are what enable a professional to grow in the ability to more effectively refine the art of teaching/service delivery and to document effective strategies and student progress in the learning community.

- Reflecting on Teaching/Service Delivery
- Maintaining Accurate Records
- Communicating with families
- Contributing to the School and District
- Growing and Developing Professionally
- Showing Professionalism

Application

It is expected that all components pertain to the educator's professional responsibilities. It is expected that through reflection, professionals are able to expand their repertoire and continue to grow professionally.

Expectations

Reflection on teaching/service delivery involves a consideration of whether or not the goals of the lesson were met. It incorporates both the quantity and quality of student engagement. Novice professionals will need time to develop a sense of accuracy in their reflection. In addition, the reflections made must be utilized in the future.

Accuracy in record keeping pertains to assignment deadlines, student learning, and non-instructional activities essential to smooth classroom and department operations. The system for monitoring student progress must align with the professional's approach to assessment.

VI

GUIDELINES FOR CLASSROOM OBSERVATIONS

Data concerning the performance of professional employees can be obtained by observing teaching/learning situations in the classroom or space where services are being delivered. Observations of such performance will be made and reported in accordance with the following guidelines:

A. Types of Classroom/Service Delivery Observations

Classroom/service delivery observations may be scheduled or unscheduled. These observations can also be formal or in-depth. Formal observations may include a pre-observation conference, observation by the administrator for the duration of the instructional period, data collection on an information gathering template, and a post-observation conference to establish professional dialogue and direction with the professional staff. An in-depth observation is similar in nature to the formal observation with the addition of a pre-observation conference and the addition of one more day of observation to get a “bigger” picture of the overall session goals. In order to get a better understanding of instructional practices with the building, administrators may conduct informal observations and classroom walk-throughs.

B. Reporting Classroom/Service Delivery Observations

1. Pre-observation Conferences (as a minimum)

- a. For Category A, employees, a pre-observation conference will precede their first formal observation. Category B employees, at the discretion of the supervisor/administrator, may participate in a pre-observation conference prior to their first formal observation. The purpose of this conference is to solidify performance activities, set the observation direction and clarify goals and objectives of the lesson.

Pre-observation conferences will occur in conjunction with in-depth observations.

- b. The Pre-observation Form within PAETEP will be used as a record of each such conference.
- c. Pre-observation conferences, when feasible, should occur within 1-3 working days prior to the observation or, in the case of special subjects, prior to the next class meeting. Should an observer be unable to observe the predetermined class, the pre-observation conference will become invalid. The process would commence anew so the conferences would pertain to the class to be observed.

2. Data Capture

The observer will take formative notes during the observation. These notes are the property of the observer but may be shared with the professional staff to enhance professional dialogue.

3. Observation Report

Following the observation, the observer will complete the Observation Summary based on (a) what was observed during the class period, (b) written planning and (c) class record, and other appropriate records and information.

C. Lesson Plans

The written plan for the lesson, including appropriate lesson materials (textbooks, classroom records, worksheets, activity packets, etc.) will be available to the evaluator. The purpose of planning is to provide a framework for instruction and assessment of learning to allow the professional staff to make a smooth and educationally sound progression through instructional activities.

1. Each professional staff will maintain lesson plans that contains plans for all sessions for the weekly period which begins on Monday A.M. and ends on Friday P.M. Lessons shall be available should illness or other reason(s) necessitate coverage of the class or classes.

2. Teacher and Service Delivery Plans

Teacher written plans should include:

- a. Reference to Pennsylvania Core Standards (where approved Standards exist)
- b. Essential questions
- c. Activating strategies
- d. Teaching strategies
- e. Differentiation
- f. Summarizing strategies
- g. Assessment

Service delivery plans should include:

- a. Setting
- b. Format
- c. Dosage
- d. Provider

Additional written details in the lesson plans and supplements or addenda to include clearly stated objectives, descriptive methodologies, descriptions for using special materials or equipment, evaluation models, etc., are encouraged. Long term planning, beyond the required weekly period, is also encouraged. Such planning will be considered as part of the total record when plans are evaluated. Suggested alternatives to allow one to meet the above guidelines are found in this booklet.

3. Flexibility is an essential element in good lesson planning. Weekly plans can and should be adjusted to meet the needs and progress of the students.

D. Classroom Records

At the time of the observation, the following records are to be made available upon request:

1. Current seating charts for all classes
2. Class rosters
3. Grade records
4. IEPs including specially designed instruction; 504 service plans for protected handicapped students.
5. Lesson plans
6. Current Module

E. Benchmark Conferences

Special consideration may be appropriate in the process of evaluation of professional personnel who may spend the majority of their time outside the formal classroom or laboratory setting: counselors, dental hygienist, school nurses, school psychologists, and instructional advisors. Benchmark conferences may also be used for other professionals, including classroom professional staff. Benchmark conference write-ups should include specific, observable examples of professional conduct beneficial to meeting the District's goals, building focus areas, and/or any of the Domains listed on the EPP document.

F. Post-Observation Conference

Observers will confer in private with employees concerning their findings during observations within six (6) school days after the date(s) of the observation(s) unless a later date is mutually agreeable. During the conference, the observer will inform the employee of the level of performance during the observation and make suggestions as to how that performance might be improved. The official copy of the Observation Summary will be housed in PAETEP. Refusal to sign will be noted by the administrator on the Observation Summary.

An employee may submit a supplementary narrative to the observer within six (6) school days of the post-observation conference if there is disagreement. Copies of this narrative will be attached to the building and District personnel file copy of the Observation Summary.

G. Observation Steps

All observation documents are housed in PAETEP and can be accessed any time by the evaluator and evaluatee. Steps for PAETEP can be found below.

GUIDELINES FOR RATINGS

A. Due Dates for Rating Reports

1. Category A professional employees will be rated at least two (2) times each school year. Rating reports will be filed with the Human Resources Office by the last day of the first semester and within three (3) weeks of the public release of the PDE data that is needed to finalize ratings. A rating conference will be scheduled with each professional employee prior to submitting the rating report.
2. Category B professional employees will be rated at least one (1) time each semester/school year with rating reports due in the Human Resources Office within three (3) weeks of the public release of the PDE data that is needed to finalize ratings. A rating conference will be scheduled with each professional employee prior to submitting the rating report.
3. Ratings can occur at any time during the year with opportunity for improvement (PIP) to occur between ratings. Ratings must be at least 4 months apart.

B. Rating Criteria

1. Each professional employee will be rated on the four domains identified by the Pennsylvania Department of Education. For teaching professionals these domains include: Planning and Preparation, Classroom Environment, Instruction, and Professional Responsibility. Domains are tailored for non-teaching professionals to reflect their unique roles and responsibilities. For non-teaching professionals, these domains include Planning and Preparation, Educational Environment, Service and Delivery, and Professional Responsibility
2. Ratings will be based upon anecdotal records, communications from supervisors/administrators to professional employees, an applicable professional job description, observation and benchmark reports, walk-throughs, self-directed activities or artifact collections. Only those supervisors/administrators authorized by the Pennsylvania School Code will rate professional employee performance. Raters will review with employees' information relative to their performance in a timely fashion rather than waiting until the end of the rating period. The final rating conference for a professional employee will be conducted by an administrator who has observed that employee at least once during the rating period. All ratings will be submitted on the Professional Employee Rating Report.
3. For purposes of rating, evaluators will apply the appropriate objectives for Educators' Performance Plan as outlined in Section V and the job description items as delineated in Section VI. Each of the four (4) criteria will be evaluated in terms of 4 descriptors: Distinguished, Proficient, Needs Improvement and Failing.

C. Determination of Total Rating

PDE uses 2 forms for final evaluation of professional staff:

- 13-1 PE & 13-1 TPE are for teaching professionals
- 13-3 PE & 13-3 TPE are for nonteaching professionals

The total ratings will be determined utilizing these forms and their weighting of indicators.

*The evaluator may assign an unsatisfactory total rating should a severe and undesirable action or actions by an employee so warrant.

D. Employee Signature

The same conditions and procedures apply as in Section VI. G.

E. Unsatisfactory Ratings

The first unsatisfactory rating of performance in this plan will be considered a satisfactory rating within the provisions of the Pennsylvania School Code. Furthermore, when an employee receives a second unsatisfactory rating, the administrator will record the second rating as "Unsatisfactory." Raters must be prepared to substantiate unsatisfactory ratings with anecdotal records citing the dates, times and places of any incidents or events considered by the rater, memos, observation reports and other formative data. As required by the School Code and Department of Education regulations, the Superintendent of Schools must approve and sign unsatisfactory ratings.

F. Unsatisfactory Ratings Required for Dismissal

Two (2) unsatisfactory ratings of a professional employee within a 10-year period shall be necessary to dismiss on the grounds of incompetency. This requirement ensures that dismissal is not based on the first instance of unsatisfactory performance, but that dismissal follows notice and an opportunity for the professional employee to improve performance. It is important to note that two (2) unsatisfactory ratings can occur within the school year.

VIII IMPROVEMENT OF PROFESSIONAL EMPLOYEE PERFORMANCE

The major objective of the Educators' Performance Plan (EPP) is to communicate with employees about their performance, assess performance, and to encourage ongoing professional growth. When, through the observation process, an employee demonstrates a need for substantial improvement in one or more of the domains or goal areas, the following levels of assistance are available:

LEVEL 1 ASSISTANCE

PERFORMANCE IMPROVEMENT PLAN (PIP) L1
